feh, The cardboard pieces are paintings

they're just like stacks of boxes but I'm involved in shadows so with that and weres and no bulbs I get colored shadows that just change like the day. The pieces look about as simple minded as anything could possibly be. If it was anymore simple-minded it couldn't be done.

(Do you transform the boxes?)

What these sculptures look like is that theyre's something dumb very down is in front of something very interesting that you find if you move what's very dumb away from it, you don't have anything.

They're softer. Cardboard things. I think what attracted me to the cardboard thing was after fighting use of the evadable

(dia for have an idea in mind to begin with?)

I never have any idea to begin with. It just works.

I really just like working, just making things. That's the

(How do you know when it's done?)

I know it was cone when I finished.

You've seen nothing.

most important thing.

While they're being made which I love, and so by the time you're done all this dumb work then you see it for the firsttime yourself before anybody else does.

(The careboard?)

(Do you think cardboard has properties as a material?)

Whaterial is material, but I was relly turned toward cardboard because of its yielding quality. I don't have to be strong to use it.

Wall material has history. All material has its won history built into it. There's not better material. It's just as unnatural for people to use oil paint as it is to use anything class. An artist manufactures his material out of his own existence and his own either ignorance or familiarity or confidence.

(When ald you decide to by be an artist?)

I never decided to be an artist. I given up in Port Arthur, Temas and there weren't any artists. Moons knew what an artist was. It wasn't until I got out of the Havy that....

In the Mary I can my first oil painting, and then place that sensithing was going on. I alwayds draw a lot . I don't remember the year in which I decided to be an artist but it was shortly after knowing that you could be an artist.

(When idd you meet john Cage?)

I met John Cage at Blackhountain College and I think hthat was probably in 49 or 50.

(Did he have an influence on your works)

John Cage had a fantastic influence on my thinking.

(Wow was that?)

Well it a changed. From one thought to another I would always think well maybe now I'm going to losse John's interest.

but that's a necessary risk. You have to trust yourself more than anybody else or any relationship that you have.

What was it like?

I went to Blackmountain because I was very much in leve with

Sue Cushenbaum now . and I needed disci pline and Albers there was an article in Time Magazine about Albers was the world's greatest disciplinarian.

I could have gon on I think just painting with my shads and doign a mess forever, because I really loved painting of pants.

(128 Albers a great disciplinarian?

Albert is I think a fantastic teacher, but he only taught me more respect for things I all ready felt than he had.

("hat was taught at Blackmountain; what did you learn therest

leaf studies was my biggest problem. I couldn't understand why you would use leaves any natural colors to make the play them off one against the other, and that was the same problem I had with color. One color isn't used to make another color with samething else or freelf. So fack theory.

(was the atmosphere at Blackmountain discilpline?)

(that was the atmosphere like?)

Wit wer an atmosphere at Black countain College which was in every situation except the painting or in the arts was about freedom. In the arts it was about discipline and control, and control of control.

(Nee it rilated of the Fauhaus?)

HIt was almost a policing going on at Blackhountain College in the arts. Albers kept a master key, but Sue and I had A. I was the garbage man in Blackmountain College baczuse Iliked to drive trucks, so we had a studio a cocond studio that wasn't registered where I would so through everybody's closet and take tout the things that we would like to have, and he found out that that was ours and he would go through the studio . If was just like the police and make scarches to see whether you were working or not or if you were working what you were doing and anything that wasn't a class project was subversive. Now I don't know if that's Pauhaus or not.

(Bid you robel neainst this? Why warn you so intersted in the garbaga?)

it was a touch offumanity within that. I've always beach at balked education. There's something the moment something though appears as if it's something you ought toknow. I automatically think I can do without it because it's just going to interfere with earning some thing else. I think each person is their own adventure and it it can't be programmed. It can't be right. It can't be wrong.

(Mas growing up in the Southwest impreant to your)

HI grew up somephace that I would never think of living to there again and even my family moved away.

HI think maybe coming out of really being real white trash authentically gave me a sense of absolutely no fear of any other category.

(Was the feet that you're part Indian aver interesting

Ivm a quarter Cherokee, which really isn't very interesting to the Church of Christ ministers that put our family tree together:

(Do you think Where's some resum for the revivial of (why are you so concerned with what's going on why do you keep getting involved?)

I think this comes out of. we were talking about the Indian thing before and there is new focus there. They sidn't live here as an enemy to the world. They were left things very such the way they were to continue and it's perfectly clear that we can't continue the way we're going anthave either same people or a planet, and I think we're going to get insame people before we loose the planet.

(When did you first start using real objects?)

I remember in the Navey, I painted a picture of somebody and I didn't know aboutpainting yet and I used bilead from the rad. from me.

(Why did you use real objects?)

It must be something between real objects and unreal objects.

Unreal objects are ideas that people have and real objects are things that are around one.

or about Schwitters' work? when you started?

Well there were two situations, one was that I was in the museum one day and then I was in there another day.

One day that I was in there I saw a collage that Picasso had done in 1924 which was one year before I was horn and I didn't know about collages, and I thought—oh how can you do it?

Mayother one is I saw Marcel Duckhamp's stool with the bicycle wheel and Ithought on that's the most fantastic piece of sculpture that I've ever seen and it was shown with some who Maillol. Then I found out that it was Dada. that it was protest. And protest against what? There was a beautiful object, there all ready made. So I never 0225 really understood Dada, but I found out very shortly about collage because verybody asked me a lot about Schwitters so I had to find out something about Schwitters.

The of the best things like about Schwitters is that Volpe who had done theatre work I think it's in the Bauhaus. With Volpe as a composer and Scwitters wrote this piece. Volpe wrote the music. Schwetters did the piece where the temor rides around on a bisycle. I would really love to see that still.

(Were you doing the collages before you saw Schwitters*

I started with collage without ever knowing even the word collage.

("Thy did you start having objects project from your canvact)

Howe of the first things I did in the first collages was to include mirrors a which would suck the room or whatever was going on into the piece and then I went 4 to light tulbs where the painting would also be responsible for its own light.

In addition to what happened around it and then the nature of some of the naturals I worked with got so impossible to just to physically figure out how they could be supported on the wall that it was obvious that they and no business hanging flatly on the wall, and that 's the beginning of the Combines. It also gave as another surface to work on.

(that was the first Combine?)

I guess the Bed could be considered the first combine except that it isn't really because it isn't really a combine. I was doing oulptures. I tied rocks together and I hung sheets of paper one after another on a rack like out to dry but the combines where the painting just got so heavy that I had to call it something else. I think it was that one that Panza has with the chicken admirrors and then shoes in them.

odalishing may be the first one, and that started with odaleswie may be the first one, and that started with my trying to find a wedding cake and it ended up being a pillow which had the same sort of sensual quality of something standing alone like in something so tender.

(Did you have anything in mind when you did Bed?)

When I did the Bed I just literally ran out of things to paint on and there was this quilt and it was somewhere and I didn't need that so I thought it's good because I'd been working on flat surfaces wi and covering them because I was into color then Iwas covering them with funny papers. So that anything that I would do by hand would be just in addition to what wasgoing on instead of

Rauschenberg #4

I don't believe in either accident or chance.

Man has built inwith if he's with himself he has a continuity and so that to self consciously to define accident ad and chance is only rationald and I don't find the rational side of any thought it well-meaning.

I come to terms with my a materials. They know and I know that we're going to try something, and sometimes it works sometimes it doesn't but I would substitute anything for preconceptions or deliberateness. If that moment can't be as fresh and as strange and as unpredictable as what's going on all around you then its' false.

I eraked the de Kooning drawginghot out of any negative response. I was working then I was doing all white paintings and all black at the same time . And I love to draw so I was doing crasure drawings. It just didn't make any serse for me to erase my own marks, so I saw thought well this is a special situation. You're trying to make grt to so you've got to erase art and de Econing was the most important artist that day. So the piece actually began when Imocked on his door and said I'd like to erase one of your drawings and he said "come in". He gave me a drawing after he had looked through two other portfolios of drawings. The first portfolio was filled with drawings that he didn't like. The gecond portfolio was filled with drawings that he liked but could be easily erased. He had third box which was mixed media like crayon and all kinds of things, and so I got one of those. He sage he ween't going to make it easy for me.

Hand he didn't. I spent four weeks crasing that drawing with about fifteen different types of crasers, and besides that there's a drawing on the other side.

(How did you feel about Abs. Exp.?)

Abstract Expressionism I couldn't stand in

It I covian't Stand Abstract Expressionism.

It was a whole business of beatniks and things like that that was going on and Abstract Expressionists who were talking about their d sad cup of coffee and they were separating themselves from the world, as though they weren't part, and "see what I do", and "see how I suffer".

Mand I'm very private aboutmy suffering. If I suffer, it's my business. If I got some joy, it's your business.

(When did you paint....

I did a painting about Abstract Expressions just to see what the difference might be. I painted two paintings ultimately with the idea that I'd just make them as much alike as I could without measuring. Part- The point of that was to see what the differace would be between the emotional content of one and the other.

I couldn't tell the difference after I painted them.

(Did the technique of Action Painting affect your work?)

I'm sure that the freedoms that the Abstract Expressionists indulged irm changed very much the possiblities and gave new permissions to eb every artist. Pollock, particularly.

Why Pollneks

His-e Pollock's early paintings were very tight came out of false fentasy and when he started dripping I think he his whole body was engaged. It became very personal then.

And if he could drip paint and de Kooning a could smear it and Him kline could paint black and white anly really had to change the scene.

(Was there an underground against the establishmat?)

There wasn't any resistance to the Abstract Expressionists, but lock the painters that I knew at that time I think only

Jamper Johns and myself gave them enough respect not to copy them.

was showing from 1949 in the Betty Parsons Gallery while I was an art student at the Art League and I just took some works up to Betty Parsons under my arms. Sue and I carried them. She took three. I took three. It want on the day she was looking at paintings. She said something like, "Well what do you what. You want to show". and I a said, "no. I just ke know that some things are going on up here and I like what's going on. I don't understand it, and I just wondered what you thought about these." And she said. "I can't show you until May." And then we went out. I showed a long time without anybody liking the work. I was caplled a clown. I was supposed to be either against art or just furny and at some point I think it became embarassing for somebody not to have a piece of mine but it was I had many by then.

(Is talent necessary? Is handwork necessary?

I think nearly anyone has talent, but it's how you feel about that talent about whether what you would be willing to give up instead of violating it.

(Do you think of yourself as an extremist/

#I've always worked naturally, less naturally at one time or another because of some kind of distraction or another but those distractions are very important to life too.

I went to a

(Do you consciously try to be far out?)

There's no such thing as far out. If you can think ofit you've all ready almost done it.

(When did you start using silkscreens in your painting?)

I was trying to work with photographic sensitized canvas

very much in the same way that I did the all white paintings that would pick up the shadows, and there's still a project that I have in mind where the walls will just abourb whatever images appear in that room and be able to keep them and the photographic process wa unsuccessful because you could only take sway impes you couldn't add images after the process and so ga getting into silkscreen was samehow a compromise in the sense of the information, I was into information very heavy, the information and particular immediate isomation. Video would do that now, but that wasn't a pat possibility than. I took any of the photographs aysalf but I've always had this log about that things just remain the way they're made and nothing else does.

(How do you select your images)

I always select my images to look as little like a particular point of view as possible.

(Mers to you take f than Cron?

Fram any source.

(What aer some of the sources?)

I mentioned National Geographic. I mentioned Life Magazine, but the point is that I'll take my images from any source whether it's Life Magazine, National Geographic, a letter left on this table.

(Be you think you're involved in nostalgia?)

Wonce I was in collage and my works wereput people would send me special old things and I always avoided special things.

I wanted something with a the content to have so little information that it would allow room for anybody's imagianrion.

(Do you think you're an urban artist?)

Bike Cornell Corfuli worked in special things. I think I'm more unlike in than any other artist that I could ever imagine.

He had several layers of glass, a brautiful artist, but just another thing,

0236

Fran sritstif

HI think I a people artist.

(Has AY affected your work?

New York has wore prople than anytody

(What was the most important event in your life as an artist?

I think the reason that I can't figure out what the most important event thing in my life, what moment that was, is because my focus is really on the next few minutes.

(What is Fop Art?)

I kniw what second hand Pop Art is.

Second Hand Fop Art is Fop Art, but each person has his were own individual style and it's come from something else.

Literally Pop Art is a name that Alloway made up for a show in England. I don't think that that classification did anything but stop people from doing what they were doing or cave them an incentive to continue what they were doing because they were doing Pop Art. For instance.

I don't think Rossnquist has ever done Pop Art. His Hisotry will absolutely natural.

(Did popular culture affect your works)

Everything effects my work if I'm really working.

(What do you think of Facilulary)

(Did Hackuhan affect your thinking?0

John Cage was trying to read MacLuhan to me. and I sad that's an oversimplification. Then I mat him. and it just doesn't work and it turns out that he just does not like people.

We doesn't like the society, so how can he be a critic profoundly and be of outside of it. That's one of the things

I had against the Abstract Expressionizes.

That is that the paty me school?
